Does Your Skin Care
School Have A Voice?

The Building Blocks of a Profession

- Foundational education
- Progressive, Involved education sector
- Committed and focused leaders

Don't You Think It's Time?

- Network and share ideas
- A voice in state and federal legislation
- A common mission and purpose to elevate the skin care profession

ASCP Skin Care Schools Council

We seek to elevate the skin care industry by strengthening its education sector and developing a respected, robust voice for the viewpoints of skin care educators.

Wherever possible, we desire to advance those aims collaboratively with other industry professionals.

American Association of Cosmetology Schools

- Ongoing skin care-specific education
- Advocacy for creative financial support alternatives
- Help to achieve effective representation of skin care in state and federal regulation
- Networking opportunities for skin care school owners, directors, and educators

Executive Director

The American Association of Cosmetology Schools was founded in 1924 as a nonprofit educational association to represent the interests of privately owned cosmetology schools and their students.

---

When it comes to your business
AACSB membership provides value:

- Offering a community of individuals working together to solve the day-to-day issues faced by schools
- Delivering an immediate value through our online communities (ListServe) to find solutions to problems, create better practices/procedures, and better position your school for the future

- Building a strong future for the industry and promoting beauty and wellness as a career of choice
- Speaking out in a powerful, unified voice in the halls of Congress, the U.S. Department of Education and state legislatures to protect the interests of schools and their students

Training—Networking—Knowledge
